

SB26 | HABIT AND ROUTINE AUDIT

Refining Your Daily Forge

STRIKE

Choice

Keep letting the day decide for you, or inspect one real day, cut one weak block, and protect one strong block.
A routine is the Anvil. If the surface is weak, effort scatters. If the surface is stable, action becomes proof.

S SURVEY THE FULL DAY

Map yesterday from waking to sleeping. Use real time blocks.

TIME	WHAT HAPPENED	TAG
_____	_____	☐
_____	_____	☐
_____	_____	☐
_____	_____	☐
_____	_____	☐
_____	_____	☐
_____	_____	☐
_____	_____	☐

Use H for high-value, N for neutral, L for low-value.
Do not write "busy." Write what actually happened.
Best clue: which block left you later, weaker, or sharper?

T TAG THE PATTERN

Circle the blocks that shaped the day most.

Strongest high-value block: _____
Weakest low-value block: _____

R REMOVE THE WEAKEST LEAK

Choose one leak only. Make the rule physical and clear.

Trigger: _____
Cost: _____
Rule: _____

I INSTALL A BETTER REPLACEMENT

Empty space refills with old habits. Give it a better job.

Old action: _____
New action: _____
Setup needed: _____

K KEEP THE STRONG BLOCK PROTECTED

Do not only cut weakness. Defend what already works.

Strong block: _____
Why it works: _____
Threat: _____
Boundary: _____
Amplifier: _____

E EVALUATE AFTER SEVEN DAYS

A plan is not proof until the week tests it.

Seven-day test: _____
Daily mark: _____
Proof to watch: _____
Review date: _____
Next adjustment: _____

Action Steps Summary

1

Map the Day

Track one full day hour by hour so the real pattern is visible.

2

Cut the Leak

Choose one low-value block and replace it with a repeatable action.

3

Protect the Fire

Defend one high-value block for seven days and review the proof.

Final check: One weak block cut. One strong block protected. One seven-day test chosen.
