

MEASURE YOUR PROGRESS AND REFINE

Choice: Keep working off feeling alone and repeat the same effort with no proof, or face the truth, measure what is real, and make one clean adjustment that sharpens your results.

ONE AREA ONLY

Fitness, skill, routine, discipline, work output, or any area where progress can be observed.

Pick one. Go deep. Do not scatter.

SELECT ONE AREA

What part of your life are you auditing this week?

A

ASSESS NOW VS THEN

Compare your current reality with an earlier point in time.

Past baseline: _____

Current result: _____

P

PICK ONE ADJUSTMENT

What single change will sharpen your next result?

N

NOTE THE NEXT RESULT

What will you check next to see if the adjustment worked?

SHARPEN

H

HIGHLIGHT THE METRIC

What number, signal, or proof will show real progress?

R

REPORT THE TRUTH

State it plainly. Improved, stalled, or regressed?

E

EXECUTE NOW

When will you apply the refinement?

Date / time: _____

First action: _____

REFLECTION

What changed when you looked at your effort through proof instead of feeling?

ACTION STEPS SUMMARY

1. Track It: pick one area and one metric so progress becomes visible.

2. Face It: compare now to before and tell the truth without emotion.

3. Fix It: make one adjustment and apply it immediately.
